

Matching Students with Books by Nancy Phillips

SRI tests have been taken, and you and your students know their lexile levels. You've communicated this information to parents who are eager to find books at the perfect reading level. Now where do you look? Here are some suggestions:

Our Follett library catalog can search by lexile. Choose Reading Programs, select Lexile, and enter your range (100 below to 50 above). Enter a subject in the Find box, or just type the word books and click Keyword.

Lexile.com is a website that allows searching for a specific book's lexile or browsing by subject.

Scholastic.com/bookwizard allows searching by lexile, grade level, Guided Reading and DRA.

There are three search options: "Search for All Books", "Search for Similar Books", and "Search by Reading Level". Under "Search by Reading Level", there are four radio buttons: "Grade Level Equivalent (1.0 to 12.9)", "Guided Reading (A-Z)", "DRA (A, 1-80)", and "Lexile Measure (200L-1600L)". Below these is a search input field with the placeholder text "Enter a title, author, or keyword" and a "Find Books" button. To the right of the search area is a promotional banner for "Storia School Edition" featuring a laptop displaying the Storia interface and the text "Get Unlimited Access to 2,000 eBooks for Grades PreK-6 for an Entire School Year!" with a "Learn More" button.
